Definition of Corporate Governance:

The term "Corporate Governance" has different meanings, which in turn generate different conceptualizations, therefore, it is important to establish that for its subsidiary companies, it will be understood as the set of policies and principles of management, administration and supervision and control that guarantee the appropriate conducts to govern the relations between Shareholders, the Board of Directors and the Superior Management. These in turn will ensure the creation of value and the generation of trust with the different interest groups.

The objective of this Corporate Governance Code is to serve as an instrument of communication and disclosure to stakeholders on the principles of corporate governance, the strategic definitions that govern BICSA, the governance structure, the internal control system, the information to disclose, the prevention policies and administration of situations of conflicts of interest, among other aspects.

The success of the Corporate Governance system will be a function of aligning the decisions made within BICSA with the objectives of this and their owners. Achieving long-term sustainability of its operations, creating value for the groups of interest, the absolute respect to the normativity, and the adequate development of the corporate social responsibility.

The BICSA Corporate Governance system is guided by the regulatory frameworks, the definitions of the financial conglomerate to which it belongs, the best practices, which will be identified and adopted periodically, based on definitions and development of specialized non-governmental organizations; Senior Management will make the relevant investigations and proposals to the Risk and Corporate Governance Directive Committee

The Corporate Governance system will ensure compliance with the principles of the OECD, the COSO principles for internal control which will be implemented periodically, the principles formulated by the Basel Committee, the basic principles of the Institute of Corporate Governance of Panama and the pertinent norms, especially the Agreements in force that the Superintendency of Banks of Panama issues on the matter.

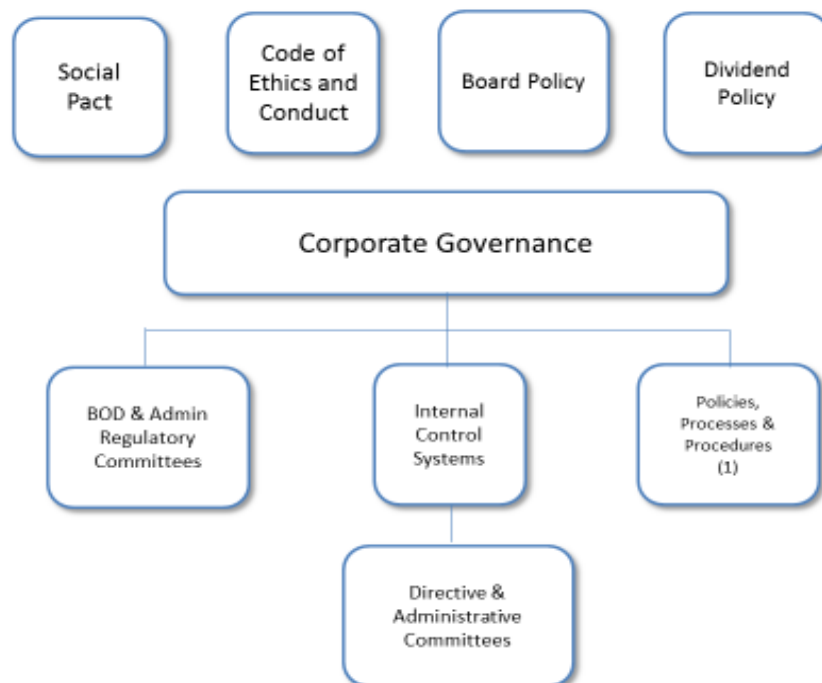

The Corporate Government must ensure that they are always preserved:

Basic Principles of the Corporate Governance System:

Regarding the relationship between shareholders, Board of Directors and Administration, Corporate Governance is supported on the following basic principles:

- Equity

Ensure that all stakeholders, including shareholders, are treated fairly and fairly, as this not only avoids conflicts, but also generates a climate of trust that provides prosperity.

- Impartiality

All decisions made in BICSA and its collegiate bodies will be balanced and adopted with rectitude, will not benefit any party to the detriment of another or the interests of the institution, which will prevail in the event of conflict.

- Personal responsibility

The management of the persons involved in the governance of the entity must obey the general principle of "Comply or Explain" and, of joint and several liability by act or omission, when there are situations that objectively contradict the spirit of the present code or any provision normative.

- Corporate responsibility

The summation of the decisions of all the people involved, Shareholders, Directors, Officers and Administrators, constitute the way of acting of an organization, therefore, corporate responsibilities are built through the responsibilities of the people.
